BLAME GAME

Executives point fingers at each other in first public questioning on Gulf oil spill

BP PLC told Congress on Tuesday that its massive oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico was caused by the failure of a crucial safety device made by another company. In turn, that company said BP was in charge, and that a third company that poured concrete to plug the exploratory well did not do so correctly. The third company, which was plugging the well in anticipation of future production, says it only was following BP's plan.

The blame game shot into the open Tuesday as the Senate began a hearing into the oil spill that has been contaminating water in the Gulf of Mexico for three weeks and threatens sensitive marshes and marine life from Louisiana to Florida. AP

GETTY IMAGES, LA TIMES AND AP FILE PHOTOS

BP

Notable: BP PLC focused on a critical safety device, the 450-ton blowout protector, that was supposed to shut off oil flow on the ocean floor in the event of a well blowout but "failed to operate." BP owned the exploratory well and was the overall operator.

"That was to be the fail-safe in case of an accident."

LAMAR MCKAY, chairman of BP America

TRANSOCEAN

Notable: Transocean emphasized BP's role, saying BP prepared the drilling plan and BP gave the go-ahead to fill the well pipe with seawater before a final cement cap was installed, reducing the downward pressure. The Swiss-based company owned the drilling rig and key well safety equipment.

"Offshore oil and gas production projects begin and end with the operator, in this case BP."

STEVEN NEWMAN, Transocean CEO

HALLIBURTON

Notable: Halliburton said the company followed a process dictated by BP's drilling plan. The company worked on sealing the well for future oil production.

Halliburton's work was done "in accordance with the requirements" set out by BP and followed accepted industry practices.

TIM PROBERT, Halliburton executive

Drifting satellite threatens cable TV

Associated Press

A TV communications satellite is drifting out of control thousands of miles above the Earth, threatening to wander into another satellite's orbit and interfere with cable programming across the U.S., the satellites' owners said Tuesday.

FINANCIAL EFFECT?

The company in charge of drifting satellite Galaxy 15 would not comment on its value, but such spacecraft can be worth about $400 million and cost about the same to launch.

Communications company Intelsat said it lost control of the Galaxy 15 satellite April 8, possibly because the satellite's systems were knocked out by a solar storm. Intelsat cannot remotely steer the satellite to remain in its orbit, so Galaxy 15 is creeping toward the adjacent path of another TV communications satellite that serves U.S. cable companies.

Galaxy 15 continues to receive and transmit satellite signals, and they probably will interfere with the second satellite, known as AMC 11, if Galaxy 15 drifts into its orbit as expected around May 23, according to AMC 11's owner, SES World Skies.

AMC 11 receives digital programming from cable TV channels and transmits it to all U.S. cable networks from its orbit 22,000 miles above the equator, SES World Skies said. It operates on the same frequencies as Galaxy 15.

"That fact means that there is likely to be some kind of interference," SES World Skies spokesman Yves Feltes said. "Our aim is to bring any interference down to zero."

He would not name any of the cable TV channels or providers that could be affected or say how long the interference could last.

Arizona, do I look American enough?

I need to bleach my hair blond and wear my blue contacts. Maybe find Michael Jackson's dermatologist to have my skin lightened, and after that, I'm off to Arizona.

Even if I do all that, I may not be able to open my mouth. I have an accent, you see.

I moved to the U.S. almost 16 years ago. I have had proper documentation since the day of my arrival and I carried a green card in my wallet for 13 years. Do I need to carry my U.S. passport if I go to Arizona? It does feel as though I would be visiting another country.

The issue here is not having documentation to prove that I am legally in the U.S. Plain and simple, this is about racial profiling.

Let me tell you about an experiment I conducted years ago.

Tired of being stopped and "randomly" searched every time I would fly, I decided to get a makeover. I got bluish contact lenses, shaved all my facial hair, got a trendy haircut and bought some expensive clothes.

Then, I bought a ticket to Europe.

At the airport, I placed my shades on my head when I went through security. I didn't open my mouth and acted aloof and cool, you know, as though I travel all the time. It worked. I made it to the plane without being questioned or stopped.

On the plane, my eyes got dry. I rushed to the bathroom to take out the contacts.

On my way back to my seat, a woman gave me a funny look. I think she noticed the change.

Thirty minutes before the plane was to land in Spain, I went to the bathroom to get back into character. At customs, I was asked how long I was staying, the reason for my trip and—voila!—my passport got stamped. I was in Europe. My experiment was working.

On my way back, 10 days later, I followed the same drill, and everything went fine. No frisking, no asking, no suspicious looks or questions. Coincidence? Maybe.

I didn't go in disguise during my following trip, months later. I was "randomly" asked to step aside.

Now, with the new law, a police officer in Arizona has broad powers to detain anyone suspected of being in the country illegally. If an officer thinks I raise "reasonable suspicion," he or she can ask for documentation that proves I am in the country legally.

I carry only my driver's license with me. I don't walk around with my passport when I am in the country of which I am a citizen. But my skin is dark and my accent is thick. Does that make me look suspicious? Am I going to get charged with a state crime for not carrying immigration documents?

I may need to get a makeover again and try to lose my accent.

Tired of CPAP?

Our patients are tired of their CPAP so they are not using it as directed by their physician. Dr. Craig states, "If you are not using the CPAP as directed your Sleep Apnea is not treated". You are probably still experiencing symptoms, still driving drowsy and still at risk for cardiovascular complications and other health problems. You don't have to feel this way!

Over time people accept that they feel tired and cannot function well due to their fatigue. They don't know any different and they figure that's just the way they are. If you ask them they might say they are fine. They come in because a bed partner couldn't stand their snoring anymore and they refuse to wear the CPAP. After being treated their energy returns, their mood perks up, they accomplish more and their relationships improve.

Scott was treated successfully with the oral appliance and with CPAP, but he prefers the oral appliance.

Melaney, the Clinical Director of Midwest Dental Sleep Center states, "After being treated with the oral appliance our patients tell us they did not realize just how exhausted they had been". She recalls a story where a patient's dog ate their appliance and it had to be sent back to the lab to get repaired. They commented that they had not realized how much better they felt until they were without the appliance for a few days. The patient reported that they could never go back to a time in which they were untreated and they didn't understand how they functioned that way for so many years.

The oral appliance is similar to a retainer. It is clear, plastic and fits over the teeth. The oral appliance is small enough to fit in your pocket, simple to maintain and easy to travel with. No more hoses, straps or headgear! It works by moving the base of the tongue out of the airway and toning the muscles of the airway so that they do not collapse. This is the same reason why someone doing CPR during an emergency moves the lower jaw forward to clear the airway. The concept has been around for decades.

Midwest Dental Sleep Center is the first Dental Sleep Center in Illinois and one of the first in the country. Dr. Richard Craig is a licensed general dentist and has solely dedicated his time to treating patients suffering from snoring and sleep apnea. Dr. Craig states, "our office feels like a spa, staff really get to know our patients' stories and spend the time necessary to make sure they get the best care possible".

When people first call Midwest Dental Sleep Center they are concerned about whether or not medical insurance pays for it. Melaney explains, "Medical Insurance covers it, with the exception of Medicaid and Medicare". In the past they had to work for months to actually get the pre-approval and the payment from insurance. After a great deal of advocacy and appeals, Midwest Dental Sleep Center has developed excellent relationships with insurance companies. It is such a pleasure to be able to go through exact insurance payments with the patient before they commit to treatment. Melaney adds, "We have been one of the first centers in the country to really understand how to secure payment for this service".

So if you are tired of being tired, or your loved ones are just tired of your snoring, Call Midwest Dental Sleep Center today at (888)724-1503 or visit at www.tiredofcpap.com.

Sleep Apnea:

The Midwest Dental Sleep Center said most sleep apnea sufferers snore. Snoring alone, however, is not enough to diagnose sleep apnea. Other risk factors for the disease:

- high blood-pressure
- cardiovascular complications
- diabetes
- weight gain
- erectile dysfunction
- labored breathing or periods of not breathing while asleep
- daytime fatigue
- difficulty getting out of bed
- napping or dozing off
- drowsy driving
- morning headaches
- gastric reflux or heartburn
- need extra pillows to sleep
- frequent trips to the restroom at night
- easily frustrated or irritable
- hyperactivity (ADD or ADHD) in children
- difficulty with memory, ability to focus or concentration
- neck size over 15 inches for women; 17 inches for men

If you have these symptoms you might have sleep apnea and need to see your physician.

2 Chicagoans say they have prescription for residents plagued by parking tickets

By Leonor Vivanco

REDEYE

Wouldn't it be great if you got a warning and reminder about street cleaning so you wouldn't get slapped with a $50 ticket?

Now, there are at least two websites—stopthebroomnow.com and stopparkingtickets.com—to help drivers avoid those tickets. Subscribers pay a fee—$8 for the former site and $9.99 for the latter—then type in their address and where they typically park. The sites alert subscribers via e-mails and text messages in advance of a scheduled sweep.

Chicagoans, be on the lookout, because street sweeping season is under way from April through October or November, depending on the schedule for certain areas. The city posts parking restriction signs the day before the scheduled sweep and issues $50 tickets to owners who fail to move their cars. Some areas have permanent signs notifying residents of parking restrictions for street sweeping.

From January through August 2009, there were 191,901 tickets issued for the violation, according to the city's Department of Revenue. For the entire year of 2008, there were 348,210 tickets issued due to street cleaning.

Greg Bukowski, 32, has gotten more than one of those tickets. "I parked at night and just didn't see the sign," said Bukowski, a construction business owner who lives in Old Town. Another time he didn't go to his car parked on the street for days and when he checked on his car he found a ticket.

Every time he saw a ticket, his stomach sank, he said: "It ruins the rest of your day."

So he created stopparkingtickets.com last summer and now counts more than 100 customers getting e-mails 24 hours ahead of time and text alerts as reminders the morning of the sweep.

The sites duplicate information the city provides for free, said Matt Smith, spokesman for the Streets and Sanitation Department. The city puts up signs and posts its street cleaning schedule online at cityof-chicago.org, he said in an e-mail. The same information can be found by calling 3-1-1 or ward offices, he said.

The website creators say the disposable signs the city posts can be flimsy—sometimes falling off trees, they say—and their service is beneficial to drivers who park on city streets, especially those who might not use their cars every day.

Joel Guy, 28, launched stopthebroomnow.com two weeks ago. So far, roughly 20 people signed up for the $8 yearly subscription to get e-mail and text alerts 24 hours and Joel Guy of stopthebroomnow.com.

48 hours in advance of scheduled sweeps.

"I feel like it's another tax you have to pay if you're a car owner in Chicago," said Guy, who lives in Logan Square. "When I walk out and see a ticket, I feel like I've been ripped off by the city." LVIVANCO@TRIBUNE.COM

Police: Doctor lied to officials about stabbing

Associated Press

An Iowa doctor who claimed he was attacked and robbed as he jogged along the river in downtown Chicago actually stabbed himself, days after he was put under investigation at the university where he worked, authorities said Tuesday.

University of Iowa officials and Chicago police wouldn't say why Dr. Gary Hunninghake, 63, was being investigated or whether it was related to the false police report he made in Chicago last month. But authorities said Hunninghake admitted stabbing himself during a trip to Chicago for a medical conference.

Hunninghake, of Coralville, Iowa, is a researcher and professor at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics and focuses on respiratory diseases. He is charged with felony disorderly conduct for filing a false police report, and a Cook County judge has ordered him held on $25,000 bond.

Chicago Police Superintendent Jody Weis called a news conference Tuesday to say the city will try to recover the full cost of the investigation from the doctor. Hunninghake's actions wasted police and fire department resources, diverting them from other investigations, Weis said.

Hunninghake told police he was jogging along the Chicago River near Michigan Avenue on April 24 when three people took his wallet and cell phone and began to stab him, police and prosecutors said. The doctor was taken to a Chicago hospital and treated for stab wounds to his upper chest and lower abdomen, police said.

After reviewing cell phone records and surveillance video, detectives found inconsistencies in the doctor's story.

Appeals court refuses to delay Blago trial

A federal appeals court Tuesday rejected the latest defense efforts to delay former Gov. Rod Blagojevich's impending corruption trial, and at least one attorney said the team would take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The decision appeared to all but wipe out any defense team prospects for pushing back the trial's scheduled June 3 start. AP

City's top teachers come up golden

Chicago Tribune

Surrounded by his students and a menagerie of classroom animals, Aaron Reedy on Tuesday challenged his zoology students to help others overcome "an irrational fear of reptiles and amphibians."

The Chilean rose hair tarantula, after all, poking around a glass case in Reedy's classroom, showed how harmless the spindly creatures can be.

Not to mention the other creatures that climbed around their own classroom habitats at Kelly High School in Brighton Park.

But lessons were interrupted Tuesday when a line of school officials, supporters and Reedy's wife surprised him with a Golden Apple Award, an honor bestowed annually upon some of the best teachers in Chicago and the suburbs.

Reedy—who kayaked 1,000 miles along the Mississippi River to test water quality and who taught in the Peace Corps—is the first teacher at the South Side school to win the award. Five other teachers received the award Tuesday. Four winners will be surprised Wednesday.

Students clapped and cheered when Reedy received his golden apple. "I'm not one of the best students in school, but this is one of the classes that I love coming to," said senior Cindy Abarca, 18. "Like, I look forward to coming here."

Reedy, 33, started the zoology course this semester at Kelly. More than 150 students already have signed up for the class next fall. Reedy also teaches biology.

Walgreens genetics tests under scrutiny by FDA

Chicago Tribune

Walgreens said Tuesday that it will begin selling personal genetic testing kits, the first major retail chain in the U.S. to offer the home tests.

The Deerfield-based drugstore chain has an agreement with Pathway, a start-up that offers genetic health and ancestry reports.

But the U.S. Food and Drug Administration told the Tribune it is investigating claims made by the San Diego-based company and Walgreens in marketing its genetic test to consumers that has not been approved by U.S. regulators.

"We are in the process of investigating this test," said Alberto Gutierrez, the office director for the FDA's office of in-vitro diagnostics. "We weren't aware of this test previously."

The FDA said it will start its investigation of Pathway Genomics, the maker of personal genetic testing kits that are expected to be available at Walgreens later this month.

Gutierrez said FDA officials have been searching the agency's databases and have found no evidence the test has been approved. The FDA said its investigation is in its early stages and Pathway will be given a chance to respond.

Walgreens issued the Tribune a statement on Pathway's behalf that said the company is "providing consumers with information about their personal genetic makeup and traits."

Drugstores already carry DNA paternity tests and gender prediction tests for the home, but genetic tests have been harder to find, typically requiring a visit to the doctor's office.

The Pathway Genomics test kits, sold under the brand name Insight, pledge to provide information on the risks of getting certain diseases, such as Alzheimer's or breast cancer.

The tests also look at the likelihood of passing health problems on to children and examine how individuals may react to certain drugs.

Quinn vetoes scholarships plan

Gov. Pat Quinn on Tuesday vetoed legislation that would restrict the controversial practice of state lawmakers handing out scholarships for state universities, saying a total ban is the only way to stop politicians from rewarding relatives and political supporters. In his veto message to lawmakers, Quinn said the proposal fails to adopt "fundamental reforms."

$500K bail in case involving fatal crash

Bail was set at $500,000 for a 22-year-old man accused of causing a DUI-related crash that killed his girlfriend's son in Steger.

Will County prosecutors asked that Cecil Conner's bail be set at $1 million after he was accused of drunkenly driving a car when it crashed into an evergreen tree in the south suburb early Monday morning, claiming the life of his backseat passenger, 5-year-old Michael Langford.

Wade's estranged wife briefly under arrest

The estranged wife of Miami Heat star Dwyane Wade was briefly taken into custody and released Tuesday after she failed to show up for a divorce hearing. An arrest warrant had been issued for Siohvaughn Wade by the judge in the divorce case Monday. Cook County deputies took her into custody at the Daley Center shortly after 11 a.m. after she arrived with her attorney, officials say.

Nov. 1 date set for terror-related trial

A federal judge Tuesday set a Nov. 1 trial date for a Chicago businessman charged in connection with the deadly terror assault in Mumbai in 2008.

The judge said he would set aside about four weeks for the trial of Tahawwur Rana, 49, who is charged with aiding the attack that killed nearly 170 people, including six Americans. Rana also is charged in a plot to kill a controversial Danish cartoonist.

Bomb scare stops city-bound bus on highway

Chicago Tribune

A Chicago-bound Greyhound bus carrying 50 passengers was stopped for about three hours Tuesday on Interstate 57 in the far south suburbs due to a report of a bomb on the bus, according to Illinois State Police.

After an inspection, it was determined the bus was carrying no explosives and it eventually continued its trip to Chicago.

While traveling through the northbound lanes of I-57 outside Monee, a passenger—who was considered a witness—aboard the bus believed she heard a passenger make a reference to the word "bomb" while using a cell phone about 9:15 a.m., state police said. The cell phone user was speaking in a dialect.

The witness called the police to report the situation and the bus driver was told to stop in a weigh-scale facility on northbound I-57, state police said. Shortly thereafter, state police arrived on the scene with the Cook County bomb squad and other investigators to search the bus.

The witness, cell-phone caller and another passenger were interviewed by authorities and later released. The bus continued to Chicago about 12:15 p.m.

British Prime Minister Gordon Brown walks Tuesday with his wife, Sarah, and their sons after announcing his intention to resign as Britain's leader. AP

Brown steps down as leader of Britain

LONDON British Prime Minister Gordon Brown resigned with a brief, emotional statement Tuesday, ending 13 years of Labour Party rule and paving the way for Conservative David Cameron to become the country's next leader.

Standing outside 10 Downing St. alongside his wife, Sarah, Brown announced he would travel to see Queen Elizabeth II to resign—allowing Cameron to take office with the expected support of Nick Clegg, leader of the third-placed Liberal Democrats.

"I have informed the queen's private secretary that it is my intention to tender my resignation to the queen," Brown said. He said he would ask the monarch to invite Cameron to form a government and wished the new leader well.

Brown then walked hand in hand with his wife and young sons, John and Fraser, down Downing Street, where a car waited to take him to the palace.

Brown's resignation ends five days of uncertainty after last week's general election left the country with no clear winner. Britain's Conservatives won the most seats but fell short of a majority, forcing them and the Labour Party to woo the Liberal Democrats.

The results left Britain with its first hung Parliament since 1974, in which no one party won a majority of seats in the House of Commons.

Violent storms that tore through the central U.S. on Monday killed five people and injured dozens more, leaving behind flattened homes, toppled semitrailers and downed power lines. An Oklahoma official refused to rule out the possibility of finding more dead.

Thieves steal cross honoring military

Thieves have stolen a cross in the Mojave Desert that was built to honor Americans who died in war, less than two weeks after the U.S. Supreme Court allowed the religious symbol to remain on federal land. Officials say the cross was stolen late Sunday or early Monday.

WESTERN CONFERENCE SEMIFINALS ★ GAME 6

San Jose's Patrick Marleau and Joe Thornton celebrate a goal during their series win over Detroit. GETTY IMAGES

Sharks on standby

Chicago Tribune

VANCOUVER, British Columbia Meanwhile, the Sharks have been circling.

As the Blackhawks and Canucks have battled it out in an extended Western Conference semifinals series, the Sharks have been playing a waiting game to see who their next opponent will be. They haven't played since dispatching the Red Wings in Game 5 of the other semifinal series Saturday and are straddling the line between getting rest and getting rusty.

"When it's a long season like this, sometimes it's nice to get a couple of days off, especially at home, and sit back and kind of watch," Hawks winger Patrick Kane said before Game 6 against the Canucks. "For them, hopefully, the layoff kind of creates some rustiness for the next series and the team going in against them obviously will be more in shape and game ready."

The Sharks will have home-ice advantage in the conference finals. Because concerts are scheduled for Thursday and Saturday at HP Pavilion, their next series likely would begin Friday or Sunday.

"It's a fine line that we're walking, but we're going to err on the rest side," Sharks coach Todd McLellan told the San Jose Mercury News. "But it is a fine line between keeping our edge and recouping."

"People always ask who you would prefer to play. But when you get to this point and there are only four teams left, you take whoever you get and you throw everything you have against them."

BROUWER PLAY

2009 Troy Brouwer gets called for a questionable goalie interference penalty that leads to the fifth Canucks goal and gives Vancouver the lead. The goal, however, would be the Canucks' last of the season.

2010 After not playing in games 3, 4 and 5, Brouwer is put in the lineup. Two minutes into the second period, Brouwer scores, putting an end to 22 minutes of flawless play by Vancouver goalie Roberto Luongo.

Blackhawks win series 4-2

Hawks find same Game 6 magic that sent them to the conference finals last season

A year ago Tuesday, Blackhawks nation celebrated a Game 6 win at the United Center over the favored Vancouver Canucks and the Hawks' first trip to the Western Conference finals since 1995. Last night, exactly one year later, the Blackhawks and Canucks met again, this time in Vancouver, with the same stakes on the line. Win, and the Blackhawks would go to the finals again, to face the San Jose Sharks. Lose, and a pressure-packed Game 7 looms at the United Center on Thursday night. And it's not just the chance to advance that makes the 2009 and 2010 series similar. There are the hat tricks, the trash talk and the mind games. Let's take a look back at last year's Game 6 and see if this year's Game 6 continued the trend of déjà vu.

BOY WONDER

2009 Patrick Kane scores a hat trick against Roberto Luongo, and hats rain down on the United Center ice. It was Kane's sixth goal of the postseason.

2010 No hat trick, but Kane scores on a nice shot in the third, putting the game out of reach at 4-1.

WHO'S THAT?

2009 Adam Burish is an unlikely hero, stopping a string of three straight Canucks goals with a tally in the third that tied it at 4.

2010 Dave Bolland scores a short-handed goal on a breakaway while the Canucks are on a power play after Duncan Keith was penalized for slashing.

IT ALL ADDED UP TO ...

2009 A 7-5 Blackhawks win and a date with the Detroit Red Wings in the Western Conference finals.

SCORING BINGE

2009 In the deciding third period last year, the Blackhawks and Canucks combined for six goals, the second-most in 10 seasons, according to Stats Inc.

2010 In the deciding second period, the Blackhawks score three times, two of them within 30 seconds of each other, to put the game nearly out of reach. Then in the third, Kane and Dustin Byfuglien (below) score goals 25 seconds apart.

AP

STEEG PARTY

2009 Kris Versteeg breaks a 1-1 tie with a power play goal. The goal had the United Center fans on their feet.

2010 Versteeg scores 36 seconds after Brouwer's goal to give the Blackhawks a 2-0 lead, silencing the GM Place fans.

1 How did the Hawks bid the city of Vancouver goodbye on their way out of town?	With three middle fingers. Sure could use that health care.	Bought souvenir "I <3 Vancouver" T-shirts. And immediately took them off.	The Hawks from Canada were probably sad considering they've done so well in Vancouver.	By beating up the two green guys.	Before or after bailing Patrick Kane out of jail?
2 What's the next hairstyle Patrick Kane should sport?	He should jump on the bandwagon like all the other faux Hawks.	Ladies love "The Bieber." Trust me.	I'd like to see a long flowing blond mane like the shirtless men on the covers of cheesy romance novels.	The Ricky Vaughn haircut.	The combover. I'm putting the receding hairline watch on 88.
3 How are San Jose players passing the time until the conference finals?	If it's what "Shark" in "Any Given Sunday" has been accused of—I don't want to know.	Learning the Heimlich maneuver.	Considering it's in Silicon Valley, probably fiddling around on their iPads like the rest of us.	Paying the refs off from the first two rounds.	By reading an e-mail I sent. "Thornton is the best setup man ... when it comes to making tee times."
4 What does Starlin Castro need to know about playing at Wrigley Field?	That Cubs fans are very understanding, especially when you come from AA.	If you mess up before the third or after the seventh inning, it's fine. No one will be there.	Legend is wrong—there isn't actually a portal to another dimension behind the ivy on the outfield wall.	His first baseman isn't on a hill to catch the ball.	That ivy makes for a pretty crappy cigar?
5 What's your solution to Gordon Beckham's troubles at the plate?	Eat more fiber. Should help with the squeeze play.	A high chair and some sippy cups.	Maybe he should bend the ball like the "other Beckham."	Get rid of the one-hit wonder walk-up song.	He needs to power more from his back leg and keep his elbow further out. I kid, I don't know soccer.

Tiger Woods may not be able to earn enough points to qualify for the BMW Championship in September. AP

Tiger gets the shaft?

The print ad hawking tickets to the BMW Championship beckons: "The top players will be there. Will you?"

Four players are pictured, but not the ones you might expect: Phil Mickelson, Ernie Els, Northwestern alum Luke Donald and Camilo Villegas, the 2008 BMW champ.

Who's missing? Well, there is the defending champion, a guy named Tiger Woods.

So it was natural to wonder: Is the tournament shying away from the scandal-plagued Woods?

"No, it doesn't have anything to do with his personal life," said Vince Pellegrino, Vice President of Tournaments for the Western Golf Association, which runs the BMW. "It's a question of: Can we promote the fact he's playing in the BMW Championship without misleading the public in any way?"

The BMW is the third leg of the FedEx Cup, and only the top 70 on the FedEx Cup points list are invited.

A little more than halfway through the 2010 sea-

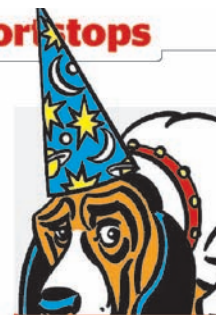

WOODS' SWING COACH RESIGNS

Tiger Woods' longtime swing coach resigned Monday night, leaving the world's No. 1 player without one of his top advisers as he tries to rebuild his game. Hank Haney said in a statement to the Golf Channel that he enjoyed working with Woods but he thinks it's time for him to step aside as his coach. Woods responded Tuesday on his website, saying, "Hank Haney and I have agreed that he will no longer be my coach. Hank is an outstanding teacher and has been a great help to me, but equally importantly he is a friend. That will not change."

son, Woods is tied for 147th in points (with 135).

Woods' neck injury has thrown his schedule into disarray and raised the possibility that he might not qualify for the Sept. 9-12 BMW Championship at Cog Hill.

"After how he played at Augusta, we talked about putting him back in our advertising," Pellegrino said. "Now we're in standstill mode because of his injury."

NIGHTCRAWLERS

SEEN ON THE SCENE AT ... THE SHRINE

Autumn Lawrence
30, marketing director

I live in Miami.

world in one day and not even leave 10 zip codes.

Why are you here tonight?
Because I'm in town, back to my favorite city in the whole wide world. I'm from Chicago, but, unfortunately,

Why do you like Chicago better?
Miami is wack. It does not have what Chicago has. Chicago has neighborhoods. You can go all around the What's been the best part of the night?

So far, it's been seeing everybody that I haven't seen in forever and being missed.

The house and hip-hop beats were banging as we stepped into the Shrine (2109 S. Wabash Ave.) to find folks who party like it's a religious experience. PHOTOS AND TEXT BY CRAIG SEYMOUR FOR METROMIX

Que Billah
31, MC

How long have you been an MC?
I've been an MC since I was 10 years old.

What do you rap about?
I rap about social issues, but from a comical standpoint. I'm like the Bill Maher of the rap game.

Who's the best MC of all time?
The best is Jay-Z. But my favorite is Redman. I grew up on Redman and he is kinda who I pattern my style after.

Karen Oberoi
35, jeweler

What kind of jeweler are you?
I'm a gemologist, so my expertise is diamonds and all sorts of gems.

If a guy is trying to impress a woman, what kind of jewelry should he give her?
It depends on the state of that relationship. If it's something new and he wants to show, "Hey, I like you," then give her a diamond key. Those are really, really in right now. Girls really like it. It's not really showing commitment, but it's showing that you like her enough.

What's your best jewelry advice?
Don't go small. The bigger, the better.

RANDOM ACTS OF GREATNESS

5 THINGS WE'RE LOVING THIS WEEK

1. Writer-director Nicole Holofcener's tart, perceptive film "Please Give." It doesn't have a lot of noise or metal like "Iron Man 2," but you won't mind. —MATT PAIS

2. Diver scallops and foie gras over green lentils with banyuls vinegar gastrique ($24) at LM Le Restaurant (4539 N. Lincoln Ave.). Delicious. —M. KATHLEEN PRATT

3. Warm, freshly made churros ($1 each) from the Churro Factory, a Chicago mini-chain that got its start at the Maxwell Street Market. We're partial to the counter-service Pilsen location (2214 S. Wolcott Ave.), perfect for a quick in-and-out snack. Choose from six churro fillings; the cream cheese is a must-try. —LISA BALDE

4. A pint of Cubby Blueberry beer ($5) from Goose Island Wrigleyville (3535 N. Clark St.). We just won't be telling our White Sox fan friends that we drink it. —ERNEST WILKINS

5. The namesake vault at the Vault (838 W. Randolph St.), the new cocktail lounge above West Loop restaurant Vivo. Discovered in the building more than two decades ago, before the restaurant opened, owner Dan Krasny reports it's too heavy to move. So they've filled it with flickering candles and made it part of the decor. —LISA ARNETT

Weird girls

Local comic duo offers an unusual song and dance, rock-star style

By Rebecca Palmore

Local actors and friends Laura Grey and Laura McKenzie, aka the Laura on Laura Comeback Tour, want to take you to the next level. And they've got a stage full of instruments—keyboard, guitar, shaker, vibraslap, melodic, trumpet, ukulele and kazoo—to prove it. The comic duo, who met in Barrel of Monkeys, an arts-education theater ensemble, portrays former teachers, both named Laura, who decide to resort to their unusually lofty fallback plan—rock stardom. That they are reaching beyond their collective ability is the joke. And it's a good one.

Laura Grey and Laura McKenzie of the Laura on Laura Comeback Tour

What's the characters' back story?

LM: In the world of the show, these are two ladies who met working as first-grade teachers at a public school. They got to the ends of their ropes and decided they were going to give it all up to become mega-rock stars.
LG: We wanted to take two people who are like, "I want to be a teacher, but my fallback plan is to be a super-awesome Ozzy Osbourne rock star."

Can you really play all of the instruments?

LG: Laura McKenzie is a very accomplished piano player. I am more of a dilettante, though I did take trumpet from middle school through college. So at one point I was very good, but my embouchure just isn't what it used to be.

You play nine songs during the show.

LG: Yes. There's an order to everything in the show, which correlates to a visual aid, which correlates to the audience getting closer and closer to the next level.

What kind of visual aids do you use?

LG: Whatever I can make with a glue gun, laminate machine, Sharpie marker and tape. There are other handheld props that are made from anything you could've stolen from your first-grade classroom if you were fired on a Friday and just grabbed everything you could and threw it into your car.

Were the Lauras fired?

LG: I would say yes.
LM: They're sort of skewing it to their own advantage.

LG: We would say it was "meant to be," but I think these two women are definitely unfit to be in front of a classroom of children. I think that probably the administration realized that as well.

What would make the Lauras really happy?

LG: I bet it would be slightly different for both characters. I would just love some sort of, like, psychedelic rock, enlightened peyote experience.
LM: For my character, probably having somebody in the audience say, "I need to marry you."
LG: And for the Lauras themselves—like, us, in real life: We'll take groupies.

How did you develop the idea?

LG: Every really fun idea comes from a really simple one. I had an art crush on Laura McKenzie because I loved all of the music she had written, and I think she's really funny, and I was obsessed with the idea that, like, we both have brown hair and we have the same name and we're both only children, and so how do I get her to hang out with me more? Maybe she could write a show with me where she writes music and we both sing and dance.
LM: I'm blushing. I would agree with what Laura Grey said about having a crush on me.
LG: We like to do kind of weird stuff that mixes music and sketch and performance art and crappy handmade props.
LM: You hit the nail on the head there with that weirdness. Being allowed to let that weird part of me come out has been fun.

10 things about Everything

Tune into the 'weirdo music' of married indie rockers Love of Everything—and learn something they don't love

By Matt Pais

The married members of Love of Everything have slightly different musical backgrounds.

Singer-guitarist Bobby Burg, 32, is a vet of Chicago bands such as Vacations, Joan of Arc and Chin Up Chin Up, to name a few. On the other hand, his wife of nearly two years, drummer Elisse La Roche, 26, recently learned to play so she could perform with Burg on tour.

It doesn't hold back the band a bit. Its endearing new record, "Best in Tensions," is a quick blast of short, snappy indie-rock songs that embrace the appeal of basic instrumentation and raw vocals. Which isn't to say it's scattered; in fact "Best in Tensions" is Burg's first Love of Everything album made in the studio, a departure from past efforts recorded at home or friends' houses, which Ukrainian Village resident Burg says were "super ramshackle."

1. How Elisse started playing drums: "I was like, 'Elisse you gotta come on tour with me!' And she was like, 'Cool, I'll do merch!' I was like, 'No, that's lame! You gotta play something. What do you want to play?' She was like, 'Drums.' And then we started practicing."

2. Writing for Elisse's talents: "Sometimes we would write the song to fit her ability and other times it was like, 'No, we're going to do this. You can do it. We're going to practice it like a hundred times.'"

CHI-TUNES

Love of Everything

When: 9 p.m. Tuesday

Where: Empty Bottle, 1035 N. Western Ave.

Tickets: $3-$5, 773-276-3600

3. Why everyone won't like the music:

"It's not like I have the best voice. Some of the themes are universal, but other ones are pretty specific. Or I'll be like, 'Oh, you can't say that in a song,' and then want to say it. Even though it is polished, it's still slightly unpolished. And that's who we are, I guess."

4. Why Burg says it's "weirdo music":

"[Laughs] I don't really know what that is, but I guess what I mean is that it's not something that is going to win a contest for being the theme for the high school prom. But there's going to be a few nerds or weirdoes, people more on the fringes of the social mainstream, that will be like, 'Oh, I identify with this.' The people that do get it, it's going to be something special for them. I get turned on by bands that I know will drive other people crazy. For instance, working in a coffee shop, my favorite music to play was the Fall, a band that just drives most normal people insane."

5. Why he likes messing with people:

"I don't like messing with people, but if you can identify with [the music], which I do, then it becomes more special for you. It becomes more yours. It becomes not private but more special."

6. The group's sound in five words or less: "Quiet. Punk. Cute and creepy."

7. Burg's perception of the band: "I think of it as an '80s punk band where anything goes, and it doesn't have to sound punk to be punk."

8. The goal of the new record: "Elisse and I went on the road and didn't have a good representation of what the band sounded like live. So that's basically what the album is. A recorded version of the way we sound live."

9. What Burg likes about short, sweet songs: "I like the idea of not getting enough. I know it's not music that everyone would like. I think people find out pretty quick whether they're into it or not. So it's not like,

10. Something Burg doesn't love: "I can't stand cheese. I can't stand it. Grosses me out. I don't like the smell or the taste. If it's accidentally on something, I can always taste it. It's horrible."

New releases

Japandroids
"No Singles"
(Polyvinyl)

In 2009, this Canadian duo topped my year-end list with its rock 'n' roll fireball "Post-Nothing," which achieved the band's fuzzy purpose—to attack guitars and drums and maintain youth as long as possible—better than any other record that year. The 10-track "No Singles" is a reissue of Japandroids' two out-of-print EPs (released in '07 and '08) that were both remastered by John Golden (Melvins, Nirvana). Part of what made "Post-Nothing" great was its focus, and "No Singles" doesn't have nearly the same consistency. "Lovers/Strangers" feels like a misguided ode to the old speed-metal days of Metallica, and "Couture Suicide" incorporates some ill-advised "Who!" cheers the duo has been wise to grow out of. While you can hear the potential in garage-rock barnburners like "Press Corps" and "Darkness on the Edge of Gastown," this abrasive record is more a time capsule of that aforementioned potential than a significant addition to their catalogue. I'm looking forward to the official follow-up.

'Undateable' authors, VH1 special tell guys to knock off dating deal breakers

BY CHRISTINA SALTER REDEYE

Bucktown resident Anne Coyle reached a crucial moment in a past relationship when she knew things wouldn't last.

During a restaurant meal, Coyle's former love interest started shoving ketchup and mustard packets in his jacket pocket, telling her it was because he didn't want to buy any "life-size condiments."

"That was a problem," Coyle said.

That lunch-date disaster is just one of many experiences that inspired Coyle and her best friend, Lincoln Park resident Ellen Rakieten, to compile the worst of the male dating mistakes they and their friends had encountered. The pair—Rakieten is a former producer for "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and Coyle runs an interior design firm—assembled all their best recommendations for confused men in their book, "Undateable: 311 Things Guys Do that Guarantee They Won't be Dating or Having Sex."

The book, which came out in early March, has inspired a five-part reality series on VH1 that began Monday: "Undateable: Top 100 Things Guys Do that Guarantee They Won't be Dating or Having Sex." The series takes complaints to a new level, with reality TV stars such as "Jersey Shore" cast members J-Woww and Pauly D and other familiar faces talking about their biggest complaints. New episodes air at 9 p.m. through Friday with repeats throughout the week.

In their book, Coyle and Rakieten categorize male flaws by level of severity: "red flags," "storm clouds," "not getting any" and "kiss of death." They attempt to show men what not to wear, what not to say—generally what not to do—as well as provide a list of stereotypical personalities to avoid altogether. The book includes plenty of photographic documentation of male mistakes in action.

Coyle said the book is meant to both entertain women and serve as a field guide for men. She said many men manage to turn off women without even realizing what they've done.

"Everyone's first reaction [to the book] as a guy is, 'Oh my God, let me see that, I hope I'm not in it,'" Coyle said. "Guys in general are less concerned with how they're presenting themselves to the world."

Some undateable tips hopefully already are obvious to single guys—Crocs and man purses are no-nos, to name a few—but the book also recommends avoiding more common style choices, such as mandannas, cell phone holsters, Bluetooth headsets in public and most forms of facial hair.

On the verbal front, "Undateable" bashes guys who say things like "make love," "it's all good" and the classic verbal

'Undateable'

9 p.m. Wednesday-Friday, VH1 (repeats often)

Do you enjoy your manboobs? Do you love jean shorts, both long and short? Um, you will not be getting any, guys. That's what the folks say on VH1's weeklong special, "Undateable." Based on the book "311 Things Guys Do That Guarantee They Won't Be Dating or Having Sex" by Chicago natives Ellen Rakieten and Anne Coyle, the five-part special has celebrities such as Bret Michaels, Hal Sparks, Chilli, Brandy and Ron Jeremy discuss the "Top 100 Things Guys Do that Guarantee They Won't Be Dating or Having Sex." Offenses include naming your penis ("King Nicholas," really, Nick Cannon?), wearing cell phones on your waist, mandarin on your head (or anywhere else, I suppose) and busting a sag. What's that? Check out the clips at showpatrolTV.com.

CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

foul, “Not that I know of,” in response to the question, “Do you have any kids?”

The book's last chapter tackles actions to avoid. Owning cats, reptiles or rodents is highly discouraged; just stick with man's best friend, please. If you have an overly creative voice-mail message, don't expect too many calls back, the authors write. While trying to impress the ladies, being a wimpy drinker or fan of cosmos and passion fruit martinis both should be avoided.

Coyle emphasized that single guys don't corner the undateable market—boyfriends and husbands are just as capable of the offenses, too. Once guys get into relationships, they tend to relax their standards a bit—or they're just clueless from the start, Coyle said.

"I think a lot of the mistakes [guys make] are really out of naivete, not a commitment to a camouflage jacket," she said.

What's the best way to alert your man to his shortcomings? Coyle recommends that concerned women bring up the topic gently, for one. If you just can't stand your boyfriend's jean-shorts, offer to tell him one thing he does that bothers you. In exchange, he can tell you one thing he'd like you to change. (Try not to get angry when he has no problem coming up with your irritating qualities.)

And just because a guy's habit has been declared an "undateable," it doesn't mean he has to give it up. Coyle says a little bit of swagger often can overcome even the worst fashion crime.

“Confidence is ultimately what makes a guy sexy,” she said. “If you think that you look hot in that pinkie ring, and you think that wearing your camouflage jacket or black socks with loafers makes you hot ... then maybe you can carry it off.”

The Benefits of Being Undateable

Hey guys, did you just realize that all those quirks your mother calls “endearing” actually make you a single lady’s worst nightmare? That can be an ego killer, even for the most self-confident man about town. Luckily, RedEye knows all the hidden advantages to your so-called dating faults.

»» Wearing sunglasses indoors or at night: Haven't you heard? The sun NEVER sets on a badass.

»» Overly gelled hair: You will definitely have a strong advantage during your “Jersey Shore 2” audition.

» Wearing suspenders with a belt: Unnecessary, maybe. But you never will be caught lookin' like a fool with your pants on the ground.

»» Bad facial hair: Take the plunge, shave it off and you have an instant (free!) makeover.

Mannequins

MCT

Have you ever noticed that some mannequins in stores are ... um ... top heavy? Seriously, some of the busts are so big it's a feat of engineering the whole thing doesn't topple forward.

But maybe those double-D dummies aren't so out of sync after all. It turns out that breasts are getting bigger in the U.S. The median bra size a decade ago was 36C. In the '70s and '80s the median bra size was 34B.

But now lingerie, foundation and undergarment manufacturers and retailers report there is a demand for DD, DDD and G cups, according to Fashion Gossip Weekly. Some bra builders are going for a K cup.

Pretzel M&M's

$3.99 for 9.9-ounce bag at CVS

If you thought a peanut inside an M&M is amazing, hold on to your candy-coated shell. Pretzel M&M's combine for the perfect little bite of chocolate, sweet, salty and crunch. The hardest part is putting the bag down; I'm serious, it won't be easy. The only thing that could possibly make them better would be a dark chocolate option. Note to fans of yellow M&M's: There are none. SCOTT KLEINBERG, REDEYE

TV

'Modern Family' 8 p.m. Wednesday, ABC

Mitchell (Jesse Tyle Ferguson) learns that Cameron (Eric Stonestreet, above) isn't quite the adventurer he pretended to be when the whole clan lands in Hawaii to celebrate Jay's (Ed O'Neill) birthday. Usually shows take a big trip like this when they are losing viewers. Not so "Modern Family." It's as strong as ever. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Jewelry doesn't have to break the bank to look expensive. Take this stone-and-chain bracelet from Guess, for instance. The perfect wine for your wedding

Spring is well under way, which means chances are good that you or someone you know are busy planning a wedding.

It's no secret that weddings can turn into an expensive affair with food and beverage taking up a sizable chunk of the budget, but you don't have to pour pricey wines to make the event memorable. The choice of which wines to serve will largely depend on the reception venue and the caterer. Some places allow you to bring in your own wines, but you have to balance this with storage and delivery requirements. Other venues limit your selection to their wine lists but if you don't see something you like, ask if special-order selections more suitable to your tastes and budget are available.

Because wines come in so many varieties, flavors and tastes, it can be daunting to narrow the choices to a white and a red for the reception and dinner. This is where your wedding party can help you by participating in a blind tasting. Place the wines under consideration in a brown paper bag and have your friends and family vote for their top two. It will be a wedding-planning project many likely won't mind. Wines also are a great way to reflect the personality of the couple by pairing unique labels with special interests, including animal lovers, travel and sports.

The celebratory nature of sparkling wines and Champagne seem to be a natural match for weddings, but they can be costly. A trend I have noticed at weddings recently is to offer a specialty cocktail such as a festive-yet-inexpensive punch during the reception, which can cut down on the bar tab by limiting custom orders. Then during the cake-cutting ceremony, an affordable yet tasty Moscato d'Asti can be passed to guests to toast the new couple. Moscato d'Asti is a sweet, sparkling, Italian dessert wine that is low in alcohol and tastes like peaches. It is much sweeter than Champagne but only a fraction of the cost and is a delicious match with wedding cake.

The couple also can enjoy a private bottle of Champagne before the reception. This will be the first wine they enjoy together as a married couple and the brand they choose can become a tradition for anniversaries.

CASTING CALL

tat's that

A complex, fascinating character, a Swedish thriller that everyone seems to have read, a daring director. No wonder several A-list actresses are said to be vying for the coveted role of Lisbeth Salander in the American version of "The Girl With the Dragon Tattoo."

People.com reports that David Fincher is set to direct an adaptation of the best-selling novel. (A well-received Swedish film version is now out.) People polled readers to find out whom they would like to see as the bitter, complicated, brilliant, bisexual computer hacker. The top two choices were Kristen Stewart and Natalie Portman. Lovely and talented women, yes, but not right for this tetchy, pierced and tattooed character. Who would be better as Salander and disgraced journalist Mikael Blomkvist, who enlists Salander's help in solving a decades-old mystery?

EMILY ROSENBAUM MAKES, REDEYE

Viggo Mortensen
AP FILE

Viggo Mortensen

as Mikael Blomkvist

Mortensen is a chameleon and seemingly can handle anything a director throws at him. He fought in the nude in an intense steam room scene in "Eastern Promises," shepherded some small creatures in the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy and even looked right at home pouring coffee for customers in "A History of Violence." Blomkvist is a flawed but decent guy who falls down the rabbit hole when he becomes involved with a wealthy family. Mortensen would bring the necessary gravitas to the role.

Evan Rachel Wood
GETTY IMAGES FILE

Evan Rachel Wood

as Lisbeth Salander

She's engaged to Marilyn Manson, so she knows about altering one's physical appearance and has played with various looks herself, including turning her hair raven black. She did excellent work in "Thirteen" and "The Wrestler," showing toughness and vulnerability. Wood currently is vamping it up on "True Blood" as the dangerous, sultry vampire queen of Louisiana. Clearly the woman is versatile and plays as a sort of wild card. That is perfect for Lisbeth.

What would people most like to see in 3-D? Probably a naked lady."

—Playboy founder Hugh Hefner discussing his magazine's June edition, which hits newsstands Friday with a 3-D centerfold

A land where no one eats

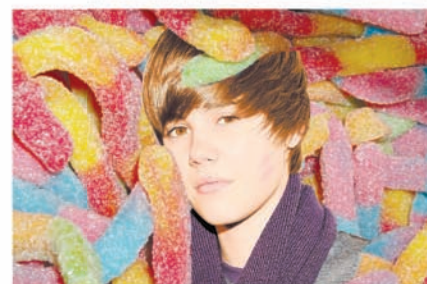

Tyra Banks (left) has conquered the runway, daytime television and now she has her sights set on the public library. The Emmy Award winner has inked a three-book deal with Random House to publish her fantasy series "Modelland" (it's pronounced Model Land). The story specifics were vague, but popeater.com says it will take place in a world "where dreams come true and life can change in the blink of a smoky eye."

Murphy

Newsweek under fire

Add "Glee" creator Ryan Murphy to the long list of those who are furious about the Newsweek column on gay actors. In an open letter, Murphy urges boycotting the magazine until it apologizes for running the remarks about gay actors being unconvincing in straight roles. Murphy calls the piece "damaging, needlessly cruel and mind-blowingly bigoted."

Bieb's bittersweet reality

Justin Bieber is a good guy. Even now, with 2.2 million Twitter followers, he frequently responds to fans' questions and retweets their greetings. "I also try to read all of my fan mail," he tells Time magazine. "A lot of them send me candy, which I'm not allowed to eat 'cause my mom says it might be poisonous."

A 'Shore' thing?

No more Snooki? The "Jersey Shore" without The Situation? That's what blackbook mag.com is reporting. Reality show casting guru Doron Ofir is "currently casting for the third season of Jersey Shore, which will feature an entirely new cast," according to BlackBook. Ofir's resume is impressive: "A Shot at Love with Tila Tequila," "Paris Hilton's My New BFF," RuPaul's Drag Race" and "Millionaire Matchmaker," among others.
